

Electa Quinney Institute for American Indian Education

Margaret Noodin

- Indigenous knowledge contains specific science and practices that lead to community healing.
- Indigenous ethics can guide reconciliation between humans and the earth. We need justice across and between people and places.
- We need to acknowledge the complexity of American Indian nations.
- Language and traditions are ways of understanding and sustaining our relationship to the changing climate.
- We need to rebuild and rely on diverse alliances.